The history of the Tegernseerhof stretches back one thousand years when Emperor Henry II gave the “zwei Huben Land” property in the Wachau to the Benedictine Abbey of Tegernsee. In 1176 the winery was built and given the name of the abbey that owned it. Today, many centuries later, the Tegernseerhof is in the hands of the Mittelbach family who have been the owners now for six generations.

The name Tegernseerhof has been passed from generation to generation just as has wine-making knowledge. The estate plots are distributed among some of the best vineyards in the Wachau. The sites are predominantly steep terraced primary rock that benefit from good air circulation and exposure to sunshine. The Smaragd wines harvested from these vineyards exhibit astounding concentration of aroma and intense expression of their individual origins. Whether Grüner Veltliner or Riesling, each wine has its own personality and character.

92 Riesling Smaragd 2009 Kellerberg

Pale green-yellow. The nose is still somewhat restrained, but reveals enticing mandarin, peach and dark smoky minerals. Very tautly strung with vibrant acid carrying delicious apricot and peach framed in abundant nearly salty minerals. The finish is dominated by the famed Kellerberg combination of exotic fruit and intense cool smoky minerality. This wine will benefit from further bottle maturation.
